

Whether your clients are riders, walkers, mountain men or women, kite surfers, golf fanatics, or first-time Scotland visitors in search of the perfect solution to get themselves and their sports gear to (or from!) some of Scotland's best outdoor locations, then Andy McKenna's new adventure transport venture GO-WHERE might just be what you and your clients need.

GO-WHERE's all about whisking visitors off to some of Scotland's most incredible locations in a hassle-free, environmentally friendly way*. They have more fun getting to new places without any of the hassle-factor and costs of a long tedious drive. They can relax and soak up the views and enjoy the local hospitality on the way, arriving fresh to get the most out of their activities. In other words, their holiday adventure starts when they step on board!

- Carries up to eight passengers plus luggage in comfort
- Equipped to carry up to eight mountain bikes
- Pick-up / drop-off anywhere in Scotland
- Flexible: transfers; multi-day tours; event support and point-to-point back-up

GO-WHERE's based out of the mountain biking mecca of Innerleithen in the Scottish Borders, but offers a range of transport and support services throughout Scotland. As well as offering bespoke cycle and outdoors transport clients can also enjoy a range of great complimentary support services:

- Local (Scottish-wide) knowledge
- Free route and itinerary information
- First aid qualified driver
- For bikers: riding 'partner' (someone who knows the trails, and, understands riding in remote locations)
- Bike mechanic (expert trailside repairs)
- Accommodation advice and links

GO-WHERE aims to provide fun, stress free and outdoors friendly transport - not just to collect visitors and their bikes from airports, train stations and ferry terminals, but to help them explore further afield and get the most from any trip to Scotland. Andy is working closely with adventure holiday companies, accommodation providers, estates, and outdoor activity suppliers to provide a range of tailored transport solutions. He brings over thirty years experience of exploring Scotland on foot and by bike, and recognises GO-WHERE will work best by collaborating with like-minded service oriented tourism businesses and organisations throughout Scotland, the UK and internationally. If you are as keen as Andy to create great visitor experiences, and see where a high quality adventure transport solution can help visitors return again, explore further, and stay longer - then please visit his business enquiry page, or get in touch for more details.

*GO-WHERE transport services will operate in a way that minimises its impact on the environment: group travel = fewer cars on the road. Andy is also looking into offsetting CO2 emissions.
